

I am running for a seat in the ASOSU Senate because I want to act as a representative, and voice for students. As such I plan to be readily available to students in multiple ways including in person both during and outside of office hours, email, and through social media. I will also outreach to students themselves and ask what issues concern them the most, and either work directly to address those concerns, or pass them to someone who is more apt to handle such concerns. During high school on top of leadership positions in clubs, I was part of a small group that met with the assistant superintendent about issues that concerned the way we were teaching a subject. This experience showed me a lot of the behind the scenes politics of the education system, and also showed me what can be accomplished when you take initiative. As well as have someone in the position to help you, who is willing to listen to your concerns. I hope to continue taking initiative like I have in the past, being the person who is willing to listen to your concerns, and ultimately represent the mood of, and be the voice of, you, the student.
