Platform Statement

My name is Aiden Tariku and I'm campaigning for a seat on the Senate. Student Government has always been appealing to me because I like having a voice and being involved. I've held positions in student government prior to ASOSU, and have held elected positions within my fraternity. As a marketing major, promotion is an inherent strength I foster. I like getting ideas out there. If elected, I plan to promote programs like CAPS (counselling and psychological services) and SASS (sexual assault support services). It's important to help Oregon State students understand that they have support in times of hardship. I also plan to be a listener. I want to tackle issues brought up by students by listening first, then using my voice in student government to take action.
