Q12 - Synopsis of Proposed Changes for the adoption of a new ASOSU Constitution

Changing ASOSU Congress into a single body 'The Senate' As described by ASOSU

Congress Ballot Measure 12.14 - "Unicameral Constitution Bill" Calls for the adoption of a new constitution for the ASOSU Student Government. The following bill outlines the restructuring of the legislative branch in which the Senate and the House of Representatives will be combined into a single body as 'The Senate.' The number of legislative seats will change from 37 total (25 Representatives and 12 Senators) to a total of 24 seats, of which half will represent specific constituent communities on campus, and the other half will be generally elected as they are now. Note that constituencies can be added, removed, or adjusted in the Senate with four fifths majority, and approval of the ASOSU President. Functioning as a single body will improve communication and collaboration within the legislative branch and allow Congress to pass legislation in half the time. The major goals of this change are to make ASOSU a more accurate representation of the student body and to cut out the time intensive bureaucratic hurdles.

This ballot measure also changes how future ballot measures proposed to the student body can be passed. Currently, an amendment cannot be passed unless 15% of the entire student body participates in the election, even if the majority of voters vote to pass said ballot measure. With the passage of this ballot measure, future amendments will only require 50% of those who participate in the election to vote on the amendment (yay/nay).

Of those votes, two thirds must be in favor for the amendment to pass. This summary is provided to outline major proposed changes to the current Constitution. For more detailed proposed changes for a new ASOSU Student Government Constitution, see Ballot Measure JB-12.14 in ASOSU Elections 2021 Voter Guide found at asosu.oregonstate.edu/book/asosu-elections What a 'Yes' vote means: By voting "yes" to this change, the House of Representatives and the Senate will be combined into one legislative body, which will still be called the Senate. This new body will consist of twenty-four (24) seats. Half of these seats (12) will be open to general election from the entire student body, and the other half (12) will be open to general election from designated constituencies. What a 'No' vote means: By voting "no" to this change, the structure of the ASOSU legislative branch shall not be changed and will remain as a bicameral congress consisting of a twenty-five (25) member House of Representatives and a twelve (12) member Senate.
